13 June 2018

TORONTO, CANADA: Super Simple™ is thrilled to announce the return of The Bumble Nums with today's premiere of Season Two on their Super Simple TV YouTube channel. The first episode features Boomerang Banana Splits, calling on the three silly chefs: Humble, Stumble and Grumble to assist with finding the secret ingredient - three boomeranging bananas!

The Bumble Nums love to bounce, climb, fly, and stretch as they make their way to the recipe of the day's secret ingredient. Offering viewers the opportunity to participate by counting along with The Bumble Nums, there are subtle educational components built into each episode, keeping the preschool demographic in mind. Once the trio has arrived back in their kitchen with their main ingredients, they set out to make the featured recipe using the cooking countdown. This season has 26 episodes scheduled for release on Mondays at 10:30am EST, and will feature fantastical delicacies such as Mouth-Watering Mac and Cheese, Bouncing Bean Burritos and Dragon Fruit Cake.

To accompany a few of the episodes, Super Simple has developed real-life recipes inspired by The Bumble Nums for their blog. Banana Split Popsicles, and Mac and Cheese Wheels are two of the early offerings that will be available to fans. The free resources section of their site is also rich with supplementary activities for each episode. Free to download, these activities add an extra educational component to the series.
